INSURED PENSION FUNDS NOW OVER $11 BILLION

Funds set aside in insured pension plans in the United States increased by $1,275,000,000 during 1955 and stood at $11,075,000,000 at the start of this year.

Almost entirely the development of the war and post-war years, there are now 18,980 of these plans covering 4,150,000 individuals and establishing future retirement income of $1,815,000,000 annually.

This is shown in a survey just made by the Institute of Life Insurance, covering the employer-employee pension plans now in force with the life insurance companies of the country.

"The rapidity with which these plans have grown is demonstrated by the fact that the number of insured pension plans in force has nearly doubled and the total reserves set aside in these plans have more than doubled in the past five years, with recently an 1840% there were only 1,530 insured pension plans in force throughout the country and they then covered only 685,000 persons. This voluntary planning for retirement by employees has increased 840% in 1940."

The employer - employee groups are now setting aside $1,415,000,000 annually in these plans, about 80 per cent being paid by employers and 20 per cent by employees.

Eventual income to be paid out by the insured pension plans is reported at $1,815,000,000 annually and even that income figure is understated, the Institute says, as over half of the persons covered come under deferred group annuities which are normally based on annual increment purchases of paid up retirement income.

In such plans the actual planned retirement income is much larger than the paid-up amount used to measure the plans.

The group annuities in force at the start of this year covered 3,900,000 persons under 4,750 master contracts and they accounted for $9,000,000,000 of the pension reserves now set up with the life companies.

Although most of the pension plans are of recent origin, many of them are already beginning to pay out retirement income to annuitants.

The group annuities alone accounted for benefit payments of more than $160,000,000 last year.

of the Senior Plays were in Assembly on Wednesday, April 18th.

Assembly last Wednesday, Appomattox instructors from Virginia State College's Agricultural Department, spoke to the student body on the subject of agricultural opportunities and what college life has for any student. Rev. R. Q. Mitchell introduced Dr. William Hertelluttrist, and Mr. J. Antrel Husbandry Instructor, shown of the branches of agriculture special emphasis on Bacteriology, and of work being done in divisions of the Agriculture School and the college in general. This program was of much value. A special meeting was held at the end for juniors and seniors with these instructors.

On Friday, April 13, Golria Jenkins, senior, represented us at Virginia Union University, Richmond, in the Annual Negro Organization Society's Oratorical Contest. Her speech was very excellently presented, for which she received a medal. We felt very proud of Golria. Seniors throughout Virginia high schools were eligible to compete. Viola Johnson and Roberta Lewis attended the contest. Mrs. H. P. James accompanied the group. The students were impressed with the college. They met President S. D. Proctor, who invited them to a special lunch with him and who told them of opportunities open to them at Union.

Our first home baseball game will be this Thursday, April 19, at 1:00 P. M., on our campus, versus

INTERFERENCE MAY COME FROM ELECTRIC FENCE

Some owners of electric fences are in the broadcasting business.

Their programs are limted to buzzes, crackles, and static. Agricultural engineers at VPI say if you are bothered with these types of noises on your radio or TV set, for no known reason, check your community for a defective electric fence.

Electric fences have a place on many farms, but if they are operating improperly or happen to be one of the homemade type, they may be both dangerous to humans and livestock and annoying to radio and television reception.

Here are some of the causes of radio and TV interference by electric fences:

1. Improperly installed wire from the controller to the fence circuit.
2. A loose gate connection or wire splice which causes arcing due to the small area of contact and movement at the point of joining.
3. Poorly made conections anywhere.
4. Copper and aluminum wire used in the same fence. They are practically impossible to join by twisted joints without causing arcing when air and moisture can reach the point of union. Therefore, use fence wire of only one kind and either solder your splice or use a proper type splice connector.

Another important feature of electric fences is to have them properly grounded at the controller. The easiest way to do this is to drive an 8-foot pipe into moist earth and attach the ground connection of the fence controller to the pipe with No. 12 or larger ground wire.

If you have radio or TV interference, disconnect your fence and ask your neighbors who have one to do likewise. If the annoying static disappears, the trouble is in one of the fences. Then test them individually until the faulty fence is located. If you are unable to track down the trouble in a faulty fence, call your power supplier or an electrical contractor.

Subscription rate: $2.00 a year; payable in advance.

A. H. S. TO COMPETE IN STATE CONTEST

Four Appomattox High School students won the right to compete in the state forensic contest to be held in Charolttesville April 27, each winning first place in a contest held at Brookville April 14.

Peyton Abbitt, a freshman, won the public speaking contest for her speech, "What Teen-agers Want and Need."

Shawn Mabley, a senior, was quite successful in the poetry contest, using as her selection Byron's "Prisoner of Chillon."

Frank Hanenkrat, winner of the boy's prose reading contest, is a junior. His selection was appropriate to his ambition to be a doctor of philosophy. His reading was Plato's "Discussion on Poetry."

Excerpts from "Sixteen" were read by Carol Myers, winner of the girl's prose reading contest. Carol is a senior.

JAYCEES TO ATTEND PRESBYTERIAN SERVICE SUNDAY AT 11 A. M.

The Appomattox County Junior Chamber of Commerce, in a body, will attend the 11:00 A. M. Worship Service this Sunday, at the Appomattox Court House Presbyterian Church. This is one of a series of group attendance visits by the Jaycees. Last Sunday they attended services at St. John's Episcopal Church, and on the fifth Sunday in this month they will attend services at Liberty Baptist Church.

Attention is called to a change in the order, the visit to the Presbyterian Church having originally been scheduled for the fifth Sunday.
